ESCP Europe doctoral programmes will welcome 30 new PhD students for the coming year: 9 in Berlin and 21 in Paris. In addition, 3 PhD students will join the CFVG-ESCP Europe PhD programme under the supervision of ESCP Europe faculty members. The intake in Paris is especially large, as compared to previous years. For one part, this is a result of the dedicated financial support of the ESCP Europe Foundation. For another part, a number of Chairs have now secured the support of companies (again, through the ESCP Europe Foundation) for research projects involving doctoral students. In addition, several companies directly contribute to doctoral research through the specific type of work contract called CIFRE. Though it might be a prolific period and we certainly should take this for granted for the future, this means that our doctoral research projects are not isolated, purely academic projects: they are grounded in real-world issues and preoccupations.

Other features of the 2017 intake include a relatively high proportion are that (about a third) of the students who come from ‘foreign’ countries (that is, neither France nor Germany), and an optimal gender balance between male and female. The London faculty is also more and more involved in the supervision of students, with Prof. Claudia Jonczyk joining the team.

Just like last year, 13 students completed their research, and 7 more should be granted the “Docteur/e” or “Doktor/in” title before the end of 2017. Congratulations to all of them!

Our PhD doctoral students also deserve to be praised for the numerous publications they produced: 30 peer-reviewed journal articles, 9 books or book chapters, and 91 conference papers. To continue on this quantitative assessment of their hard work, they gave more than 2000 hours of teaching in Paris and Berlin, and greatly contributed to departments, chairs, research centers with more than 750 days of assistantship in Paris.

Both programmes continue to collaborate intensely. For instance, the Publication Seminar has again merged both groups, so that the doctoral students could extend their network, share experiences, and benefit from multiple views on management research. This tradition will be continued in 2018.

All these accomplishments are the outcomes of the continuous support of, not only the Faculty, but ESCP Europe at large; and, as mentioned, the financial support of the ESCP Europe Foundation.

Visitings

Jean-Charles Buttolo: London School of Economics (LSE), 09/01 to 31/03/2017
Department of Accounting, with Professor Mike Power
“Visiting the Department of Accounting at the London School of Economics was a great pleasure. During my stay, I found much inspiration and innovation to progress on my PhD project. The visit allowed me to develop familiarity with new faces and theoretical references as much as to think of further projects beyond my doctorate.”

Bruno Cazenave: Royal Holloway University of London - January 2017
I spent a full month visiting in Royal Holloway University of London. I had the opportunity to move forwards my main paper by presenting it twice (RHUL and Leister). Visiting has proven to be a great opportunity to meet more seniors management control colleagues and to gather feedback on both my thesis and my paper.

Carole Charbonnel: Aalto University, Helsinki, Finland, August 2017
“While spending one month in Aalto University in Helsinki, I have been immersed in a stimulating environment, and could share my research projects with PhD students and some high level marketing researchers. Many discussions with Eric Arnould enabled me to improve my understanding of writing articles based on qualitative data, and prompted me to go even deeper in questioning the theoretical underpinnings of my research topic, co-creation.”

Cylien Gibert: Copenhagen Business School, April / May 2017.
“Visiting the Department of Organization at the Copenhagen Business School was a formative and entertaining experience that complemented my doctoral training. The stay allowed me to get closer to top academics in my field, to exchange with new research communities, and to gain new perspectives on current academic debates related to my thesis.”

Henry Gonzalez:
Oxford University’s Saïd Business School (UK)
• Visiting Faculty providing tutorials and leadership mentoring to students across the University, particularly in the MBA program, interested in emerging markets finance and social entrepreneurship
• Contribute strategically with the Skoll Centre for Social Entrepreneurship in initiatives with regards to impact investing.

Rice University’s Baker Institute for Public Policy (US)
• Industry Expert on Impact Investing for the Latin American Initiative

Leslie Scattolin: Bournemouth University (UK), June 2017
“Thanks to the CEFAG scholarship, I was able to make a one-month research visit at Bournemouth University (UK). I worked with Prof. Janice Denegri-Knott, a worldwide leading researcher in my area. It definitively gave a boost to my PhD! I discovered new perspectives on making research and on thinking the job of researcher: it was really enriching. I was included in the department’s scientific life and joined the main events. I already have plans to go back and develop further collaboration. This visiting was a fantastic opportunity and a major step in building my career. I would do it again any time!”
Scientific Awards

The ACR Film Festival People’s Choice Award is presented to Karina Isaak, Elena Dinkevych and Robert Wilken for the film “Further away = higher willingness to pay?” at the 2016 Association for Consumer Research Conference.

Highlight

Talent Spring: a stimulating project for ESCP Europe PhD students

ESCP Europe PhD students are actively involved in Talent Spring, a new admissions procedure for the Master’s program created in 2016. It is an innovative and demanding admissions procedure that focuses on important non-academic skills for public and private organizations. Eligible candidates either come from a social background or had medical issues that hindered their ability to pursue studies in a top university. During the first stage, a candidate’s academic qualifications are assessed based on their academic record. Selected candidates are then invited to participate in a 3-day selection trial based around the assessment centers method. The trial, which requires high individual participation, evaluates the behavior of candidates in real situations using a rich competency framework. A team of observers compares their observations on a candidate’s competencies to ensure fair selection. Several doctoral students contribute to the test design and more importantly the teamwork that makes the whole process so successful. The candidates report afterwards that the selection process leaves them with "exceptional", "rewarding" and "very emotional" memories and describe the experience as "amazing!"

Joint Seminar Paris-Berlin

The traditional joint inter-campus Publication Seminar that concludes the 1st year of the doctoral programme took place in Paris (Montparnasse campus), on June 26 and 27, 2017. A total of 23 doctoral students from Berlin and Paris learned how to craft manuscripts for submission to scientific, peer-reviewed journals, and how to respond to reviewers during the publication process. Four professors – Kerstin Alfes, Houdou Basse Mama, Markus Bick, and Robert Wilken – used their own published research articles to illustrate their experience, so that the doctoral students received first-hand information ready for application to their own research projects. The event was topped off by a casual networking session in a typical Paris bar.
